Field House Alters Student Sections

Student seating arrangements for basketball in the Field House have been changed.

Because of the increase in university enrollment, sections B, C, and D in the north bleachers have been set up for students attending the games, according to Bob Dundas, ticket manager at the Field House. The new sections will add about 500 seats.

Dundas also said that wives of students may purchase tickets within the student sections, but must pay regular bleacher price. A season activity card for student wives can be bought at the Business Office for $6.50.

The only areas to be reserved in the special student sections will be for the band, Bear Paws, and Spurs.

Tax School Opens With 85 Registered

The Third Annual Montana Tax school opened yesterday; 85 lawyers, accountants, and business men registered. More are expected to register today, according to Prof. Thomas L. Waterbury of the Tax School committee.

Following President McFarland's welcome address, Sherman V. Lohn of Garlington, Lohn, and Robinson, of Missoula, told of pitfalls to avoid in distribution of taxes after representing either spouse in a divorce action.

George D. Anderson, C.P.A., of Nead and Anderson, Helena, discussed tax problems of small business. He spoke specifically on the basic tax characteristics of various forms of business organizations and comparative tax rates of ordinary income and capital gains.

In the afternoon, James R. Felt discussed the securing of assets for a new business. He covered problems of various types of business organization, including those peculiar to incorporation. Felt is a member of Felt, Felt, and Burnett of Billings.

Maurice Colberg, C.P.A., of Colberg, Wallin, and Doorman, of Billings, concluded the session yesterday with a presentation of income tax treatment of livestock and timber sales.

MSU Rifle Team Wins First Match;
Bids for Second Successful Year

By JIM GRAFF

The University rifle team began its bid for another successful season by winning the first match in the Western Montana Small Bore League. MSU edged Frenchtown 1878 to 1874 Wednesday.

This is only one of many leagues and matches the varsity squad participates in yearly. Last season it posted a phenomenal record of 67 wins against only two losses. The University of California at Berkeley and Norwich College in Vermont were the only competitors capable of out-scoring Montana.

MSU riflemen recently captured "Betsy Rotcy"—an ancient firearm resembling a musket, offered by the Butte School of Mines as a traveling trophy in 1951 for collegiate rifle competition in Montana—by defeating Montana State College. Since its inception in 1951, MSU has won the musket every year but the first.

The team represents MSU in every meet and is listed under the minor sport category.

Team Claims Title

They have a fair claim to the Skyline Rifle championship even though it is an unofficial one. The squad defeated every other conference rifle team in postal matches last year.

A few of the returning sharp shooters of the team include captain Don Schessler, Jack Foster, Clayton Gerstenberger, John Donahue, Harlan Hayes, Ralph Stockstead, Bob Johnson, Rily Hunton

Basketball Rules Undergo Changes

Once again the basketball rules have been changed. The free-throw lane has been widened, the one and one free-throw rule has been changed, and an attempt has been made to reduce stalling.

The free-throw lane has been widened from six to 12 feet. This was done mainly to keep the "big man" away from underneath the basket. The three-second rule does not allow anyone in the free-throw lane for more than three seconds. The enlargement of the free-throw lane will keep the "big man" away from the basket during play and when a free throw is being shot.

In the past few years, the one and one bonus rule was for the first 37 minutes of the game. In the last three minutes of the game the player fouled received two free throws. This year the one and one rule will be in effect the entire game. A player fouled will receive one free throw and if he makes it he will get a bonus shot. If the free throw is missed, the ball will be in play.

A player may retain possession of the ball for only five seconds unless he is moving forward or is in scoring position.

and Ronnie Gordin. The team is coached by Sgts. Hansen and Leonard of the ROTC department.

Membership is open to all University students whether or not they are enrolled in ROTC. The team is chartered by the National Rifle Association, spokesman for all competitive target firing.

ROTC Furnishes Equipment

The ROTC department furnishes most of the facilities, namely, rifles, ammunition, ranges, jackets, gloves and scopes. The matches are based on a possible 400 points. These points are divided evenly among four shooting positions; prone, sitting, kneeling, and off-hand. In order to qualify for the varsity squad a firer must average around 380 each week.

All matches are fired on 50 foot ranges using .22 caliber Winchester target rifles equipped with iron sights. In the case of postal matches, the rival teams do not fire shoulder to shoulder, but mail the target sheets to each other for scoring to decide the winner.

Win Hearst Trophy in '53

The nationally sponsored William Randolph Hearst tournament is on a postal basis. This is one of the most highly competitive rifle matches of the year and nearly every college in the nation is represented. Led by Don Schessler, a dead-eye MSU team captured the first place trophy in 1953.

According to John Donahue, a veteran from last year's high scoring group, the team has tentatively scheduled trips to Seattle, Bozeman, and Moscow, Idaho this season. A recent victim of Montana shooters was Colorado A & M, who suffered a 1904 to 1839 defeat at the hands of the Grizzlies.

The MSU marksmen already enjoy a national reputation stretching from West Point to UCLA; its strange they aren't better recognized in their own back yard.
